Synopsis

Sevilla and the Andalusian countryside of Spain in the early nineteenth century.

FIRST ACT:

Some soldiers stand guard. Brigadier Morales sees a young woman with golden hair arrive: it is Micaela, who is looking for her fiancé, Brigadier Don José. Morales announces to Don José that a "beautiful girl has come asking for him" and that she will return. Lieutenant Zúñiga, new in the province, asks Don José what he knows about the building located on the other side of the square. It is a tobacco factory, in which only women work. He rings the bell. It's break time for the cigarrera. Carmen approaches. A worker, the most awaited of all, does not take long to appear: it is Carmen, and all the men court her. She notices Don José, approaches him and they start a brief conversation. Micaela arrives and announces to Don José that she comes on behalf of her mother. She sends him a letter in which she advises him to marry the messenger of the letter, because "there is no one better and nicer." A big argument takes place in front of the factory. Carmen makes fun of a worker, who has attacked her, and then she scratched the worker's face with a knife. Therefore Zúñiga interrogates Carmen and arrests her. Don José will be in charge of taking her to prison. Carmen begins to seduce her friendly guardian. She finally convinces the brigadier to let her run away, and she manages to escape.

SECOND ACT:

Two months later, some officers find themselves in the Lillas Pastia tavern, a notorious meeting point for smugglers, where Carmen is singing. There is also Lieutenant Zúñiga, who informs Carmen that Don José was demoted and arrested for letting her run away and that he has just completed his punishment. Don José, who has already been released from prison, appears and tells Carmen his love for her. The bugle sounds, and Don José must return to the unit. Carmen tells him that if he really loves her, he has to follow her with the smugglers. But for Don José, this means the shame and infamy of deserting, and for a moment he decides to abandon her. At that moment, Lieutenant Zúñiga arrives, who enters forcing the door. He wants to throw Don José out for being with Carmen. Don José, enraged, draws his sword. The smugglers immobilise and disarm Zúñiga and decide to hold him for a while. "Are you one of us now?" Carmen asks Don José, who answers: "I have no other choice." Carmen, the gypsies and the smugglers promise Don José a life full of freedom.

THIRD ACT:

We are on the mountain, where the smugglers' camp is. Carmen and Don José argue. She says that his love is not like before. Don José thinks of his mother. Carmen tells him to leave, because he is definitely not made for this type of life. The smugglers start the operation when, suddenly, Micaela arrives at the camp together with a guide. Don José, who is on guard, shoots at an unknown man, but he misses it. It is Escamillo, the bullfighter, who explains to Don José that he is coming to meet Carmen, because according to what they have told him, she no longer loves the soldier he had abandoned. Both men engage in a knife fight. Escamillo slips and falls. When Don José is about to hurt him, Carmen enters and stops him. Micaela appears, who has come to look for Don José because her mother is about to die. Carmen encourages Don José to leave, but the idea of giving away to a new lover is unbearable for Don José. Finally, Don José leaves but promises Carmen that they will see each other again.

FOURTH ACT:

A square in Seville, in front of the Plaza de Toros. Street vendors offer their wares. Lieutenant Zúñiga is surprised not to see Carmen. Suddenly the spectacle of the gang of bullfighting takes place, which Escamillo closes together with the radiant Carmen. Don José appears and, seeing Carmen, begs her to start a new life, proclaiming her love for her, but Carmen rejects him. Don José, blinded by her anger, stabs her to death. At that moment, Escamillo emerges victoriously, while the enthusiastic audience cheers for him.
